 - Doc found here!
 - Making a video to be posted to Instagram
 - Is it possible to have a EWEW specific website to host videos and other pertinent information?
 - This was done in the past, could there be some historical knowledge?
 - Definitely up AS's alley, but Katie is willing to host a committee webpage through the Office of Sustainability website
 - Potentially have both main webpages link to EWEW?
 - Zeen: Talk to Botany to know how the relationship between the department and gardeners developed. Was it one professor that had a friendship with someone, or more generally, how did the opportunity begin?
 - Talk to previous teachers about it.
 - Professor hasn't gotten back to Zeen yet, but they do have a meeting with another faculty member later this week.
 - Last week's discussion was about having fruit trees on campus, and we wanted to know if we could have Botany interns to take

- SDSU has put together a food foraging map for their campus, showing all of the edible food that has been established. Potentially another idea we can follow up on.
 - Could allow us to see “food deserts” where there is a lack of edible food in one area compared to others.
 - A map of native and edible plants on campus?
 - Native plant names as well?
- SDSU Example
 - Find out if there could be some finding for students who go out and start to ID edible plants that are already on campus.
 - Housing this as an internship under the Botany department, then talking to Tom Williams to coordinate locations.
 - Other academic departments like GIS might be able to help out
 - Zeen: Wildlife and other CNRS majors have thought that it would be a great option for credit.

4. Earth Week Planning

- Katie: The planning for events for what has been called “Earth Week” happens in the 3rd week of April. It has taken different interactions of how the events get planned, but 10-15 years ago there was an Art and Music event called SLAM. Planned through A.S., Center Activities, and used to have huge success on campus.
 - Ended once they lost funding, and student interest from A.S. waned. Took on a more informal process.
 - Within the last few years, this committee was started from a student club to plan Earth Week in a more formal process.
 - Molly, Morgan, Jenessa, and Katie were all excited for how Earth Week could look if it was integrated into the Institutional Programming Model (IPM).
 - Pooling all of our resources to create a larger event.
- Next week we’ll have guests that are staff members that will help us with planning Earth Week
- Brainstorm ideas for Earth Week
